Power of Information

Professor Murali Venkatesh believes digital inclusion is a civil right. His expertise in management information systems and research in next-generation community networking helps him put that belief into action through community engagement initiatives. As director of the iSchool's Community and Information Technology Institute, Venkatesh and his students work together on such projects as installing wireless technologies at a local library and helping small start-up businesses assess their information technology needs.

Diamond's Destiny

Robert Diamond has two passions in life—technology and musical theater. He has found a creative way to combine both through BroadwayWorld.com, his online clearinghouse for news from the Great White Way. Diamond's web site features blogs, events calendars, and show reviews, as well as information on how to buy the hottest tickets on tour or in town. Not only has Diamond found a successful and satisfying career, he's also helped coordinate more than 20 concerts to benefit Broadway Cares/Equity Fights AIDS.
