

PUBLIC SERVICE IS MY PASSION CHANGING THE WORLD IS MY GOAL

When Nathalie Quezada '08 became aware of the disconnect between the Syracuse city police and local Latino community, she took action. Inspired by her public policy class, she developed the Cross-Cultural Connections Program to teach police officers Spanish and increase their awareness of Latino culture through interactions with Latino/a youth. Nathalie is just one of the many SU students changing lives for the better through Scholarship in Action.

Nathalie Quezada '08 meets twice weekly with Syracuse city police officers and Latino/a youth at the West Side Learning Center in Syracuse, New York.

Gifts that support enterprising students—such as Nathalie Quezada—enhance our ability to educate leaders who have the drive, imagination, and critical thinking skills needed to make a real and lasting difference in the world.
